Jason has a diverse financial background with extensive experience in financial assessment and analysis and strategic business planning. His primary focus on behalf of Aurora's clients is providing detailed operational and financial analysis and planning support to clients requiring turn-around management services.

Prior to joining Aurora Jason had his own consulting firm providing strategic business, financial, and tax planning services to companies in a variety of industries. He has also worked for a division of Cox Enterprises called Manheim, which is the world's largest auto-auction company where he was the corporate liaison for all their international auctions and their North American non-auction businesses such as Dent Wizard and Manheim Automotive Financial Services. These businesses generated over a half billion dollars in annual revenue and his responsibilities included the monthly review and analysis of each business units' financials, strategic planning and new business development initiatives.

Mr. Shulick has also worked for PricewaterhouseCoopers, LLP and Ernst & Young, LLP where he handled a variety of consulting projects for clients such as International Paper, Blockbuster, Vanguard, and Halliburton.

Jason is a registered CPA in the state of Texas and is a member of the Atlanta Turnaround Management Association. He holds a Masters of Professional Accountancy degree from The University of Texas at Austin and a B.S. from Clemson University.
