

Course Description

Nursing is constantly changing and nurses strive in building a culture of nursing excellence. This seminar will address these issues through the Nursing Peer Review, which will assist nurses to protect their patients and themselves. A variety of topics from Home Health and as well as perspective about nurse's role globally are very relevant to make the nursing profession first and forefront in the delivery of local and international health care.

The attendees will learn the different strategies for developing positive communication, enabling them to enhance their work and personal relationships. Excellence is continuous learning and this seminar will give an opportunity for nurses to refresh and rekindle their passion for excellence.
